THE PROTEST OF A SON.

J. F. McCarthy Objects to His Father as an Administrator.

The Estate of the Petitioner's Mother Involved in the Controversy-Criminal Court Proceedings Referred to in the Papers Filed.

The trial of James McCarthy in the Police Court on the charge of selling liquor to a minor in January, 1888, and his subsequent trial in the criminal division of the Supreme Court of the District on a indictment charging him with perjury, growing out of the same offence, is re-called by the protest recently filed in the Probate Court by his son, Jeremiah E McCarthy. The latter objects to his fath er, whose name is given in the probate matter as James F. McCarthy, being ap-pointed administrator of the estate of his other, Mary T. McCarthy, who died July

In his answer to the petition of his father to be granted letters of administra-tion on the estate of his mother, Jeremiah F. McCarthy protests on the ground that his father "is addicted to the habit of drinking intoxicating liquors to excess. He further states that his father "has n business qualifications whatever to act as administrator," and that he is not capable of managing his own estate or the property of others

The son also alleges that his father was once convicted of perjury in the District courts. In this connection it is stated that his father was granted a new trial, and on the second hearing the jury disagreed. On October 26, 1889, it is stated, the proeedings were nol-prossed. Jeremiah F McCarthy is joined in his protest by his brother, John J. McCarthy, based on simflar reasons. May McCarthy Daley, a sister of Jeremiah F. and John J. McCar-thy, joins them in the protest for like who is a resident of Indianapolis, Ind.

The estate is valued at about $1,000.

The records in the case show that on January 5, 1888, McCarthy was placed on trial in the Police Court. Judge Snell presiding, on an information charging him with selling liquor to Richard Williams a minor. After this trial he was rior of the Convent of the order in that indicted by the grand jury for perjury, the custom of this congregation to select one name from these lists and nominate that priest for the vacant see.

The matter is then brought to the attention of the Pope, who makes the appointment.

Of the priests mentioned as possible successors to Bishop Moore the Rev. Dr. W. A. Fletcher, the rector of the Cathedral, this city, is prominent. Dr. Fletcher accompanied the Cardinal to Rome on his recent visit and made a favorable impression there. The degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon him as a special mark of favor by Pope Leo. Another priest prominently mentioned is Very Rev. William J. Kenny, the present vicar general of the diocese. Both names will most likely be on the lists sent to Rome. The diocese of St. Augustine is one of the smallest in point of numbers in the United States, the Catholic population numbering only about 7,000, although the parish of St. Augustine is the oldest in the land. The first colonists came from Spain in 1565, more than hair a century before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth. The parish was fully organized at that period, and a full set of its records of, baptisms and marriages from the year 1594 is in a perfect state of preservation. These records are now in the city of Havana, whither they were carried in 1763 at the first change of flag which made Florida pass under English rule. The diocese comprises the eastern, middle and southern portions of the State of Florida.

Travels of a Raised Note That Went Through a Chicago Bank.

One of the essential features of a bank employe's character is that he must be positive. He must not think. He must know, "During all his life," said a promi-nent banker, speaking of an old employe, "that man has been told that he must not think. He must do as he is directed."

not think. He must do as he is directed."
This quality to the young bank clerk is certain to lead to assurance.

A few weeks ago in one of the biggest banks of the city a teller found a $1 bill which had been raised to $10. He remembered that he had received it from a railroad company early that day. His assistant in the forenoon works with another teller in the afternoon. The two thought it would be entertaining to exchange the bill for one in the possession of the other teller and hear what he had to say when he discovered the raised bill. They intended, of course, to take it back after the joke had "worked."

Contrary to their expectations, the other teller said nothing about the bill. The next day the man who had proposed the joke concluded that he had better get it back. The assistant told the intended victim that he had seen a raised $1 bill in their receipts, and asked him if he had noticed it.

"Oh, yes," was the answer. "I saw it, but I remembered where it he had better to the total contractions of the but I was the properties."

noticed it.

"Oh, yes," was the answer. "I saw it, but I remembered where it had come from and sent it back. This opened the eyes of the assistant and the teller in the next cage, but they exchanged glances and asked where he had sent it. He gave the name of a hatter over in Adams Street.

The tables were turned on the jokers. They put their heads together, and the teller took a $10 bill and went over to the hatter's shop to get the bill.

"We find that we have sent you a raised bill, $1 to $10." said the young man from the bank; "the Government wants It, and we want to give you a good bill for it."

The cashier thought a moment. "Certainly, I remember that," he said; "you sent it back to us. We might have been out 8, but I remembered perfectly where I got it and sent it back there."

And the cashier bowed suavely, with as much assurance as -the teller himself. And for all the teller knows the "raised" bill ig still traveling.—Chicago News.

SISTER MARY L. NEALE DEAD.

The Venerable Nun Passes tway From the Effects of Dropsy.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 12 Sister Mary Leonard Neale, for sixty-five years a member of the Order of Visitation Nuns, lied yesterday at the convent of the orler, at Park Avenue and Centre Street of which she was one of the founders ther death was caused by dropsy. She had been alling for about two years, but had been confined to bed only during the past ree weeks.

Funeral services were held this morn-ng in the chapel of the convent and a bass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Cerdinand J. Bott, of St. Alphonsus Catholic Church. In the afternoon the pody was taken to Mount De Sales Cob ent, near Catonsville, and buried in the cemetery on the convent grounds. Six sisters acted as honorary pallbearers. Sister Mary Leonard was born in Charles county, Md., October 1, 1820. She was the daughter of George Neale, a relative of Archbishop Leonard Neale, second Archbishop of Baltimore. Her mother was Miss Harriet Matthews, also of Charles county. She was connected with the families of Taney, Brent, and Mat-thews, as well as with other leading famies of Charles and St. Mary's counties She became a student at the Academy of Visitation, Georgetown, D. C., when elev en years old, and five years later decided to become a member of the order. On November 22 1837, she made her vows and was professed as a member of the order after having spent a year in the novitiate She was sent to Baltimore to join sever other sisters who had been sent here to ound a convent. They procured a hous at the northeast corner of Greene and Mulberry Streets and remained there un-ent building.

Sister Mary Leonard developed marked ability both as a teacher and as an execu-live. In 1857 she was elected Superior of the Convent for a term of three years. Subsequently she was six times elected to that office, always filling it with dignity and credit. She was for many years proand credit. She was for many years pro-curatrix of the convent, in which position she displayed much business ability. One of the Sisters, in speaking of her, said she was liberal without being extravagant and economical without being stingy. She indicted by the grand jury for perjury, the specific charge being that during the proceedings in the Police Court, McCarthy swore that he did not sell any liquor to Williams. The boy Williams, it is said, wanted to purchase a half pint of common whisky, and that McCarthy informed him that he had only the best grade of liquor in the house at the time.

The grand jury returned an indictment charging McCarthy with perjury and he was called to trial in April of that year. After a hearing he was found guilty. His counsel filed a motion for a new trial which was granted. On the testimony against McCarthy being presented to a jury a second time, it failed to agree upon a verdict and a mistrial was ordered and the jury discharged. As stated above in about a year afterward on motion of the District Attorney the prosecution of the case was abandoned.

FEVER CARRIED BY FLEAS.

The Opinion of Dr. J. H. Egbert of San Jacinto, Honduras.

There is another distributing agent, ac-ive in some parts of the world, which should not be overlooked. Here in the mountains of Honduras, four thousand feet above sea level, we are above the mosquito belt and, as that term is gen-erally employed, above the fever belt as well; and yet malarial fevers-both quotidian and tertain types-are of common occurrence. From what do they arise: The climate, generally speaking, is salu-brious, with an equable, medium temper-ature the year round; there is an abundbrious, with an equable, medium temperature the year round; there is an abundance of good water; and from the very location of the pueblo, well up the steep side of a lofty mountain, excelient natural drainage is afforded. It is true there are people passing to and from the coast (120 miles distant) and other low districts, but these are not the only ones who suffer from the fever; neither is it limited to persons predisposed to its manifestation by previous attacks. We cannot admit a quality of contagion, as that word is properly used; and, as already stated, both geographical and topographical features show that it is not indigenous to the locality.

How, then, is, it propagated? Whatever other methods' there may be, one, at least, is patent to the writer, and that by inoculation—not by mosquitos, for they are practically unknown here—but by fleas. The fleas here, as in other parts of the country, are constantly with us, and scarcely a day passes—except it be in the height of the rainy season—but what; person who is in contact with the natives or who does not keep his own surround ings scrupulously free from dust and
